I created an "art" channel in YouTube and right now I'm trying to figure out what name I should use. Should I use my real name or keep it anonymously using a code name, nickname, or anything?

Whole Foods cuts some workers' paid breaks from 15 minutes to 10

Whole Foods Market is reducing paid breaks from 15 minutes to 10 minutes for many of its more than 90,000 workers, with the policy shift coming as retail and other front-line employees contend with surging COVID-19 cases in their communities.

Whole Foods just reduced their paid break time from 15 minutes to 10 minutes.

The upscale grocery chain and Amazon subsidiary confirmed the new rules, saying the goal is to make break policies uniform for all its employees at 487 stores in 12 regions. Workers previously had differing break times. Now, the same rest-and meal-break rules will apply to all, according to the company.

"This updated policy will provide the vast majority of team members with more break time throughout their work day. It is part of our ongoing work to streamline regional policies and processes in order to create clear and uniform policies for Team Members across all regions," a Whole Foods spokesperson told CBS MoneyWatch in an email.

Grocery store deaths

Like many other companies, Amazon and its subsidiary don't disclose the number of employees who've died or been infected by COVID-19.
